- “All [NEXUS] units combined make an excellent and thorough language arts course. The units are insightful and well written....I highly recommend the units.” —ABOUT.COM

- “A sure-fire hit with students.” — THE COLLEGE BOARD

- “The exercises in this exhilarating volume [The Grapes of Wrath & the American Dream] focus on observation skills; theme, variation, and repetition in the novel; period music, and art. Its 11 chapters reveal the social production of art in action by showing the interpenetration of all the arts—painting, music, film, journalism, theater, and novels—to produce social change.” — THE COLLEGE BOARD

- “The wonderfully rich historical background—colorful anecdotes and clear, conversational accounts of family ties, political motives, events, and phenomena—will definitely enhance students' study of the play. The illustrations for the 14 short sections (one to three pages) of this volume are stunning: maps, production photos, beautiful reproductions of tapestries, and manuscript illuminations.” — THE COLLEGE BOARD
- “A beautifully produced glossy magazine that links the text to the period’s history, music, art, theater, and science to provide “additional entry points into literature.” Supplements and team-teaching guidelines (four for this volume) suggest activities and additional readings in each discipline... all NEXUS volumes emphasize the critical skills and analogical thinking that are crucial for success on the SAT.” – THE COLLEGE BOARD

- “With an impressive group of contributors and consultants, Publisher/Editor Jesse Bryant Wilder has put together a stunning set of challenging materials that will provide outstanding learning experiences for secondary students.”—TEMPO (Journal of the Texas Association for the Gifted & Talented)

Michael W. Bergen, Communication Arts Chair, Appleton East H.S., Appleton, WI— “I haven’t seen any better material for connecting the curriculum, especially world literature and world history—and I have a lot of experience connecting the curriculum. In one instance, for example, my kids did their research topics on the artists and poets of the Harlem Renaissance and they created mini-documentaries on the artists or poets using the NEXUS materials. It went extremely well. You can see the editor has really done his research. His love of the material really shows.”

Susan Neun, English Chair, Lahser High School, Bloomfield Hills School District, Bloomfield Hills, MI— “We’ve had very successful experiences with NEXUS. The presentation is accessible to advanced and to regular students. It is an excellent compilation of materials. I think these books are absolute treasures, just remarkable. For a single teacher especially, it just pulls everything together. The magazine can take the place of a team of teachers.”

Marti Koller, English teacher, Baldwin-Woodville High School, Baldwin, WI—“Kids who are harder to engage enjoy the visuals and the real-world applications. Overall each volume provides research that any teacher would love to do, but doesn’t have the time to do, and the fact that NEXUS does it for us is very valuable.”

Dr. Paulette Goll, English Chair of Lincoln-West H.S., Cleveland, OH—“NEXUS is one of the best things I’ve ever seen. You’ve done an exceptional job with Romeo and Juliet and the Renaissance.”

Marjorie MacKeown, English Teacher, Tecumseh H.S. in New Carlisle, OH—“I really think Romeo & Juliet and the Renaissance is great, and the students enjoy it too.”

Orelia Dann, history teacher, Greenhills School, Ann Arbor, MI—“NEXUS magazines are wonderful! They are creative, scholarly and entertaining. The students love using them, and I just love the interdisciplinary approach. The magazines are also great for projects. I can send a group of students off to work from them. For example, we used HyperStudio and “Arab Astronomy” in The Lion in Winter volume with the 9th grade.”

Susan Ryan, English Chair, Immaculate Heart of Mary, Westchester, IL—“We have found the NEXUS volumes wonderful. They’ve been used in a number of classes in 10th, 11th and 12th grade, including our sophomore World Culture class, which incorporates World Literature and World History. We particularly like the correlations to art, and the students like to see the connections between different subject areas. They find that very interesting. We also find that NEXUS is particularly valuable to visual learners who are not engaged by traditional means.”

Donna Sheridan, English teacher, Magnificat, Rocky River, OH—“The kids loved Romeo & Juliet and the Renaissance. It was exciting to watch them make the connections. We had an interdisciplinary week on Galileo and NEXUS fit in perfectly. They started with the Galileo articles in NEXUS and then used the magazine to explore other interdisciplinary connections. The kids couldn’t stop; they loved finding and making the connections. It was fascinating to see, very very exciting. NEXUS worked really well.”

Katherine Sims, English teacher, Land ‘O Lakes High School, Land ‘O Lakes, FL—“We’ve received two years of NEXUS subscriptions, and we think they are the most wonderful things that walk the earth.”

Carol Dank, English teacher, Kent Roosevelt High School, Kent, OH— “The more you use NEXUS, the more uses you find for it.”

Dr. Linda Meixner, English teacher at Valley Forge High School, Parma, OH—“Even students who are difficult to manage are captivated by NEXUS magazine.”

R.R. Wilkinson in Kittredge, CO, home school teacher—“I am absolutely stunned by the quality of these materials—thank you so much!”

Jennifer Dever, English teacher, Bowling Green High School, Bowling Green, OH—“The students are learning and having fun. Yours is a great product!”

Theresa French, English Teacher, from East Leyden H.S, Franklin Park, IL (suburb of Chicago)—“NEXUS is wonderful. I’ve been telling everyone about it.”

Amy Benjamin, English Teacher, Hendrick Hudson H.S. in Montrose, NY (outside NYC)—“The students respond very well to it. I think NEXUS is great.”
